Employer Alliance Appoints Glens Falls Businessman to its Governing Board

The Employer Alliance for Affordable Health Care, New York's largest, single-issue business coalition, has appointed Glens Falls businessman Jeff Leland to serve on the Board of Directors. His appointment fills the remaining year of a two-year seat vacated by the retirement of Helen Rosplock, owner and vice president of the Bay Ridge Group in Endwell.

Leland is the president of Leland Paper Company, a family-owned business in Glens Falls started by his grandfather in 1951. He is a 1992 graduate of Sienna College and has a bachelor's degree in marketing management. He previously served as vice president and general manager of the company, where he was responsible for overseeing employee benefits, including health insurance coverage.

"Jeff has been an active member of the Employer Alliance for several years and it is this enthusiasm, along with his knowledge and experience, that make him a valuable addition to our board," said Alliance Chairman Scott Miller.

The Employer Alliance for Affordable Health Care works on behalf of small business owners and sole proprietors to keep health insurance premiums affordable by opposing legislative mandates that drive up costs. The organization has 1,200 members representing over 100,000 employees across New York State. To learn more about the organization, visit the web site at www.employeralliance.com.
